THIS IS AVOCA

Welcome to Avoca, an Irish, family-run business that spans one of the world's oldest surviving manufacturers, Ireland's most exciting retail and some of her best-loved cafés.

Our world-famous Avoca throws and rugs are found across the globe, as is our women's wear. The Avoca Pantry food label is on dozens of delicious products and there are Avoca ceramics, cookbooks, soaps... even a world-class garden.

All this from a small handweaving mill that was established in the modest rural village of Avoca in 1723. It gave us our name and we still weave there - you can take a tour and see for yourself. It roots us in our heritage and colours everything we do.

AVOCA STORES, CAFÉS & FOODHALLS

Visit any of our 12 locations around the country and you'll see why Avoca is Ireland's most interesting retail experience. Indeed Avoca has been ranked as one of the world's most inspiring stores by Retail Week Magazine.

Our cafés are a fixture in good eating guides each year. These are a mix of table and self service, but all have an emphasis on sourcing locally and cooking seasonally. It's something of a passion.

The original Avoca Café Cookbook, published as a way to pass on much-requested recipes became a best-seller to our enormous surprise and now we've a whole series.

You'll find foodhalls and delis at most Avocas, with carefully chosen artisan foods as well as scrumptious take-out from our own kitchens.

Some of our stores are set in great gardens like Mount Usher, Powerscourt House and Malahide Castle - and we've even our own garden centre and plant nursery at one of them.

IS FOR AVOCA

MADE BY AVOCA

Established in 1723, the focus at Avoca Mill is on natural yarns like lambswool, cashmere, mohair and angora. As well as weaving classic patterns, our Design Studio creates brand new ideas for throws, blankets and scarves season by season.

We've a fashion label too, Avoca Anthology - and we make knits, soaps, socks, ceramics and a list so long it'll start to bore. Which is what we try never to do.

Avoca designs usually resonate with colour and whimsical detail, like our Button pattern ceramics or jewellery with messages. All of which means when you find gorgeous stuff with our name on it, that it's uniquely ours.
